Flowers Burden by Caitlin

A flower's life is gentle, quiet.
Though it carries a sad side too
For a flower-it knows that it must die
Just as we humans do

These flowers carry a burden
Though they watch and wait with us
They simply listen, never do
No comfort bestowed, no trust

And as their lives in longer days
Grow weaker, fragile small
They pass their burden the long way down
And slowly then, they fall.
